

An Introduction to Agent-based Modeling

model is adaptively formed based on the given data. Due to this reason, ANNs are data-driven and self-adaptive by nature [5, 8, 20]. During the past few years a substantial amount of research works have been carried out towards the application of neural networks for time series modeling and forecasting.

of classification then refers more properly to the sub-models: different types of sub-models may be used in any one system model. Much of the modelling literature refers to "simulation models".

An Introduction to Multilevel Models 1.1 Hierarchically structured data Many kinds of data, including observational data collected in the human and biological sciences, have a hierarchical, nested, or clustered structure. For example, animal and human studies of inheritance deal with a natural hierarchy where offspring are grouped within families.
